Have you ever wondered why we get ill? Can our thoughts and feelings worsen or even cause conditions like heart disease, cancer or asthma? And what if anything can we do about it? Why Do People Get Ill? explores the relationship between whats going on in our heads and what happens in our bodies, combining the latest research with neglected findings from medical history. With remarkable case studies and startling new insights into why we fall ill, this intriguing book should be read by anyone who cares about their own health and that of other people.

Food is the basic necessity of one's life and whatever we do, we do so to eat well, live in comfort and have a comfortable dwelling place. But our food must be balanced, cheap, nutritious and easily available. Keeping such factors in mind and pocket constraints of general masses, some lines have been devoted to this particular aspect. Before we conclude, it is better to advise the readers that if, per chance, some complication occurs, consult dietician or Naturopath who can advise for proper modification and substitutes for juice therapy, keeping in view an individual's requirement. But never get panicky, nervous or impatient. This book has been written to stress upon the utility, efficacy, usage, curability of various physical disorders, their blending with other products as and when necessitated, alternate substitution with other less costly substitutes, so that one can derive equal benefits, even with limited and sparse resources.

Many people view healing as a purely physical experience, one which is achieved through the use of pills and potions. But for thousands of years our ancestors relied on spiritual healing in times of illness, sorrow or distress. This type of healing is about dealing with the whole person and acknowledging the connection between the physical, mental, emotional and spiritual aspects of the self. Spiritual healing can be very effective on a basic level and can be taught relatively easily. In The Healing Handbook author Tara Ward presents a range of techniques and tools for healing yourself and others, including children and animals.
